Oyster Mill Playhouse kicks off summer season

The Oyster Mill Playhouse, home of the Metropolitan Repertory Company will kick off its summer season with the musical revue By Strouse.

The season opener is a fresh musical using numbers from a dozen shows, including, "Bye Bye Birdie," "Annie," "Golden Boy," and "Applause." According to the New York Times, Charles Strouse created, "A tightly organized, crisply paced production with the songs in fresh contexts that give them a new dimension." Performance dates for the show are July 20, 21, 27, 28 at 8 p.m. and July 22 and 29 at 2 p.m. Ticket price are $9 for adults and $5 for children 12 and under.

The summer season will continue with "Greater Tuna," considered a "laugh-a-minute, and one of the funniest shows ever written. A relatively new show, the original New York Production in 1982 featured two of the authors, Joe Sears and Jaston Williams as twenty different denizens of Tuna, Texas. The fast-paced action literally jumps from the studios of radio station OKKK ("serving the Greater Tuna area at 275 watts.") to the back porch of Bertha Bumiller, to the local funeral parlor, with convenient stops throughout Tuna, Texas. The laughter is uncontrollable as the two actors fade out of one character and into another before our eyes. "Greater Tuna" is a wonderful show, perfect for all ages. Auditions for the 2 person show are the 24th and 25th of July. Performance dates are the 17th-26th of August. Ticket prices are $7.00 for adults and $4.00 for children 12 and under. Advanced reservations are a must for both shows. Reservations can be made by calling 737-6768.

Mrs. Kimberly Ann Downey

Diener-Downey Wedding

A wedding between Kimberly Ann Diener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Diener of Dillsburg and Michael Patrick Downey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Downey of Amity, Pa. took place at the United Brethren Church in Franklintown on June 16, 1990.

The bride chose a white satin gown, with a sweetheart neckline and short puffy sleeves. The off the shoulder look has a ruffle to match ruffle on sleeve edge. Bodice front and sleeves have embroidered lace and pearls with sequins to highlight. Basque waist flows into a full skirt. Ruffles finish the bottom of skirt. Gown has a cathedral train with cutouts and embroidered lace. To complete the outfit, the bride chose a matching headpiece.

Matron of Honor was Lisa A. Border, sister of the bride; bridesmaids were Jenny Shortridge, Tami Doll, friends of the bride and the flowergirl was Ashley Berlin, friend of the bride.

Best Man was Michael W. Downey, father of the groom. Ushers were Tim Downey, uncle of groom and Jerry Hager, uncle of the groom. Ring bearer was Jerred Bedillion, nephew of the groom.

A reception was held at the Monaghan Township Fire Company Social Hall.

The bride is a graduate of Northern High School and is employed by Central Pa. Homemaker Service. The groom is a graduate of Trinity High School, Washington, Pa. and is employed by Schneider Trucking.

Anglers, know your limits

Small fishing boats are Pennsylvania's most common class of boat. Over 60 percent of all powerboats registered in the Commonwealth are 16 feet or less in length. You see them being hauled on the top of station wagons, on the back of a pickup or being used on a small trailer. They are versatile, inexpensive and easy to operate. They can also be very dangerous.

Every year fishermen die on our waters because they made a mistake in judgment. Most of these accidents are avoidable. Here are some basics to stay out of trouble.

LIFE JACKETS. Everyone should wear a life jacket. Most fishermen think that most accidents are all they need in their small boat. They may be true if they are great swimmers, never drink in their boat, never boat on cold water, never stand up in their boat or never boat on moving water. There were 13 boating fatalities in Pennsylvania last year. All but two might still be alive today if they had worn a life jacket. There are many types of vests and flotation coats on the market made especially for sportsmen. Most of these units can be purchased for less than the cost of a good fishing reel.

ALCOHOL AND BOATING. It is illegal to operate a boat while under the influence of alcohol or a controlled substance. Drinking in a small boat is dangerous. Balance is the first facility affected by alcohol and small boats are usually very tippy. Fishermen fall overboard and drown when they stand to fight a fish, get their reels motor or simply stretch their legs. Remember alcohol isn't the sport fishing and boating aim.

SAFETY EQUIPMENT. All boats should have more safety equipment on board than is mandated by law. Though not required an appropriate sized anchor with good quality nylon line is very handy and can prevent you from getting into trouble. If your motor dies a properly set anchor can stop your boat from drifting over dams, rock ledges or into other boats. Anchors are also needed to position your boat when fishing, never anchor from the stern in moving water! This could swamp your boat when the current pushes water up over your transom.

Extra rope or line is very useful on board a boat, especially if something goes wrong. A good way to carry line is in a mesh bag. These inexpensive devices can be used to throw to someone in the water on shore or to another boat in an emergency. They have 50 to 70 feet of floating line compactly stuffed into a nylon bag that is thrown like a softball. Sooner or later you will need to be towed or need to tow someone else. Extra lines makes that possible.

Oars or paddles are another safety item that should not be overlooked. Securely stowed in the bottom or along the side of your boat, they will not get in you way. Motors break down or run out of gas so an alternative means of propulsion is often needed. Try hand paddling your 16 foot fishing boat in a current sometime. It doesn't work very well.

Fire extinguishers are indispensable in an emergency. Gasoline is more explosive than dynamite and will ignite with very little urging. An inexpensive U.S. Coast Guard approved marine fire extinguisher mounted in the bow of the boat (away from the fuel source) is a wise addition to even a small fishing boat with an inboard motor. Make sure the units on your boat are in proper operating condition and know how to use them.

All boats, especially small ones, should carry a bailer to remove unwanted water from the boat. A cut-off bleach bottle with the cap on tight will scoop water and can be obtained at no cost to the boater.

RULES OF THE ROAD. Many sportsmen do not realize that rules governing operation of watercraft apply to all boats, including small ones used for fishing. Fishermen do not consider themselves to be "boaters." They use their boat as a platform for fishing and do not bother to learn the basic rules of safe operation. The result of this ignorance is collisions and conflicts between fishermen and other boaters. Take the time to learn the rules for boating. This can best be accomplished by taking a safe boating course from the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, the U.S. Power Squadron or the Fish Commission.

The Fish Commission has a free brochure on small boat safety entitled Anglers Know Their Limits. For a copy, tell a self addressed stamped envelope to: Pennsylvania Fish Commission, Boating Publications, P.O. Box 1673, Harrisburg, Pa. 17105, or call (717) 657-4540.

Teaching a child to boat is a very rewarding experience. It will provide you with the satisfaction of introducing a child to a form of recreation that the whole family can share. Boating is a safe, wholesome recreational opportunity. Take some time this summer and boat a little in style. Photo: Boston Whaler
